

El Camino Newspaper Wins Again

El Camino College's student newspaper, "The Warhoop," has won two major awards for the fall semester. It has been announced by W. A. Kamrath, faculty advisor for the publication.

Kamrath said the newspaper has been rated as an All-American college newspaper by the Associated Collegiate Press. The award is the 26th in 27 semesters, he noted.

The newspaper also captured the sweepstakes award as the best student newspaper at the annual California Polytechnic College Press Day last week. The newspaper was named the best junior college paper.

Poster Child to Aid in 'Stop Measles' Campaign

Young Kim Fisher, 10, 1967 Poster Child for the National Association of Retarded Children, and the Board of Supervisors have joined forces in urging parents to take advantage of free immunization clinics throughout Los Angeles County June 1 through 5.

Kim, a victim of measles and subsequent retardation at age 2, is touring the nation to help with local community campaigns reminding parents that their children, too, could suffer mental retardation as a result of measles.

A board resolution commending Kim and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy William Fisher, and the National Association for Retarded Children for "outstanding humanitarian work in helping to eradicate measles" was adopted.

THE RESOLUTION further declared June 1 through 5 as "Stop Measles Week" in Los Angeles County and urged every parent to take advantage of the free, safe and effective immunizations for all their children between the ages of 1 through 10 years.

Supervisor Frank G. Bonelli, who presented the resolution, pointed out that some 280,000 county children have not been immunized against the 10-day "red" measles and are "highly susceptible to the disease which can kill or cripple its young victims."

Mental retardation, deafness, pneumonia and death are among the ravages of measles.

DR. GERALD A. Heidbreder, county health officer, has said that the 280,000 unprotected children in this county represent a possible 70 cases of permanent mental retardation or 28 deaths from measles encephalitis.
